THE HALSEY INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY ART PRESENTS HEAR HER, AN EXHIBITION THAT BLENDS THE CANON OF WESTERN ART ALONG WITH THE VISUAL LANGUAGES AND TRADITIONS OF NATIVE PEOPLE

On view: January 14 – February 26, 2022

CHARLESTON, SC – The Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art at the College of Charleston presents an exhibition of work by Sičáŋǵu Lakota visual artist and independent curator Dyani White Hawk entitled Hear Her. The exhibition is on view from January 14 to February 26, 2022 at the Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art's galleries. The Halsey Institute's gallery hours are Monday through Saturday 11:00 AM to 4:00 PM and 11:00 AM to 7:00 PM on Thursdays, closed on Sundays. The Halsey Institute's galleries are open to the public and admission is free.

ABOUT THE EXHIBITION

Dyani White Hawk's work illuminates the lived experiences of Native Peoples. With her video, photography, and works in other media, she aims to use the language of visual art to bring light to the deep chasm between our understanding of history and the truth. Her work weaves together forms from the canon of Western art along with the visual languages and traditions of Native people. In doing so, her work spotlights Native women, whose strength and fortitude through centuries of colonization have helped their peoples' languages and cultures to survive.

On view in Hear Her, White Hawk's video installation LISTEN presents a series of Native women speaking the language of their people. Each film takes place on the land of each participant's nation, and viewers hear the respective languages without translation. As such, White Hawk puts a focus not only on the resonance of each speaker, but she also reveals society's collective ignorance of the people, culture, and language of those native to the land on which we live. Chapter 1 of LISTEN features eight videos and White Hawk plans to continue the series to include 24 videos. The Halsey Institute commissioned White Hawk to create a video to honor the Catawba Nation, located in South Carolina.

White Hawk's photography installation I Am Your Relative confronts the gross stereotypes and distorted caricatures that dehumanize and commodify Native women. This installation, along with LISTEN, helps White Hawk shine a light on the misrepresentation of Native Peoples while reinforcing the fact that we are all connected as human beings.

Dyani White Hawk: Hear Her is sponsored in part by South Carolina Humanities, a not-for-profit organization; inspiring, engaging and enriching South Carolinians with programs on literature, history, culture and heritage. This exhibition is also supported by the Center for Sustainable Development at the College of Charleston, which provides students with the opportunities and resources to engage in our community sustainably.

EVENTS DURING HEAR HER

We are planning to continue hosting all events during spring 2022 in-person at the Halsey Institute galleries, and some will have a virtual access option. With the rapidly changing nature of the COVID-19 pandemic, there is no guarantee that all in-person events will occur as outlined below, and details are subject to change. Please visit our website at halsey.cofc.edu for the most up-to-date event information including access links for virtual events. All events are free and open to the public unless otherwise noted. M indicates a members-only event.

Free staff-led tours will take place at 2:00 PM every Saturday during the exhibition unless superseded by a public program. No reservations required.

Please note:

- The College of Charleston campus and the Halsey Institute's galleries will be closed on Monday, January 17 in observance of the federal Martin Luther King, Jr holiday.
- The Patron Preview Reception and public Opening Reception originally scheduled for Friday, January 14 have been cancelled. Our staff relish the opportunity to celebrate our exhibiting artists and the opening of a new exhibition, but local COVID-19 cases have spiked, and we feel that it is not the right time to gather in large numbers. We are hopeful that COVID-19 cases will decline through the remainder of the exhibition and allow us to plan for a Closing Reception instead. Any additional events will be added to our website, newsletters, and social media in addition to a re-issued press release for the exhibition.
